

Strategic Communications

For 24 years, Hahn and Hahn Team, Inc. has been improving the quality of the built environment and advancing their clients' knowledge and understanding of the sustainable relationship between people and their environments.

The firm is “non-traditional” and creatively blends its expertise in land use planning, urban design, strategic communications, and sustainable community planning and development to serve a broad spectrum of government, private business, and non-profit clients:

- Local, Regional, State, and Federal Agencies of the Government
- Commercial and Residential Real Estate Developers and Builders
- Housing and Law Enforcement Agencies
- Non-Profit Organizations and Non-Governmental agencies (NGOs)
- Social Entrepreneurs
- Neighborhood-Based Organizations
- American Indian Tribes
- Faith-Based Organizations, Churches, and Educational Institutions
- Community Redevelopment Authorities
- Community Development Organizations

As land use planning experts, Hahn and Hahn Team, Inc. has represented private real estate developers as project managers in the public sector entitlement process, coordinating and leading multi-disciplinary teams in obtaining government land use approvals for large-scale, mixed-use developments of regional impact (DRIs) and planned unit developments (PUDs).

As strategic communications experts, Hahn and Hahn Team, Inc. knows how to successfully create communication strategies among diverse stakeholders that link a community's human resources with the resources of the natural and built environment. We design creative, innovative, and effective public involvement and public outreach solutions that can be implemented to make a difference in the quality of the human and built environment.

As sustainable community planning and development experts, Hahn and Hahn Team, Inc. successfully and “holistically” integrates the principles of sustainability in its community planning, urban design, and strategic communications practice to inform, educate, and empower its public, private, and non-profit clients.
